Three Others in Car When It Sideswipes Truck, Less Seriously Hurt

Miss Garnet Belford of the New Holland community, sustained a badly fractured jaw, and three others in the same car were injured more or less at 12:05 A. M. Sunday morning, when the car sideswiped a truck parked in Court Street.

The accident occurred when Paul Henry Dett's car, a Chevrolet sedan, was headed west on Court Street, and sideswiped a trailer truck parked on the north side of Court Street.

Fire Chief George Hall, who chanced to be near the scene at the time said the truck displayed no lights. It was owned by the William L. Curles Co., Washington, D. C. and James Monroe Mitchell was the driver. He lives in Washington, D. C.

With Dett at the time were Miss Belford, David Ree, sailor, and Edna McBrayer, police said.

The Klever ambulance moved Miss Belford to Dr. J. H. Persinger's office, where her injuries were cared for and she was taken to her home. The other three sustained bruises and some cuts.

He was asked for comment on the report of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, which outlined the steps for a proposed 40 per cent cutback in war production hostilities with Germany are concluded.

"At least," Dewey said, "that's a start."

Gov. John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate for vice president, will spend tomorrow fishing in northern Ohio, he said today. The site was not announced.

The governor, who returned last night after officially opening his campaign in a speech at French Lick, Ind., reported his trip was "very encouraging."

"Indiana is safe for the Republicans in the November election, judging from reports I received from Republicans and Democrats," he remarked.

Ohio Democrats and Republicans will now-vow at state conventions here this week to draw up state platforms, select presidential electors, and furnish verbal ammunition for their standard-bearers in the November election.

Twenty-two hundred delegates and alternates are expected at the opening tonight of the Democratic Convention which has Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the party's candidate for governor, delivering the keynote address.

The Republicans will meet Thursday, and headquarters promised today "all state candidates will be present for the opening" of the GOP Convention.

James W. Huffman, Columbus attorney, whom Lausche defeated in the May primary for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, will be chairman of tonight's session.

Also scheduled for speeches are former Lt. Gov. William G. Pickrel, candidate for U. S. senator; Chief Justice V. Weygant of the Ohio Supreme Court, and State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

Eugene Hanhart, of New Philadelphia, will preside at Tuesday's closing sessions.

Republican Prelude

As a prelude to the Republican state convention, a meeting of nearly 300 party leaders, including county central and executive committee chairman, county chairwomen and members of the state central and executive committees, will meet Wednesday afternoon at the new state headquarters here to discuss campaign plans and strategy.

Main speakers at the GOP convention will be Gov. John W. Bricker, party nominee for vice president; Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, candidate

PRESSURE ON JAPAN INCREASED FROM AIR WITH 5-DAY ATTACK

Other bombing raids reached from the Bonin and volcano islands south of Tokyo to Bougainville in the southwest Pacific where MacArthur reported attacks on Japanese "Victory Gardens."

Japanese troops captured Tungan in their drive toward Kweilin, key point in the defense of southeast China.

The Arakan front in southwest Burma blazed into action after six months of quiet as the British 14th army renewed its drive toward the port of Akyab.

Fighting in China

Chinese troops battled today to save the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin from Japanese troops thrusting down the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad toward the provincial frontier.

The Japanese were last reported in the captured town of Tungan, 90 miles from Kweilin, after taking the American airbase at Lingling, only about 12 miles from the Kwangsi province border.

(A Tokyo broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission said Japanese troops captured Wenchow in southern Chekiang province Saturday in an advance from fallen Kinwha.)

The 14th Army has opened an offensive against the Japanese in the long quiescent Arakan sector in lower Burma. It was announced officially today.

The troops were attacking a strategic Japanese position on a ridge in the Mayu range south-east of Butheading, about 60 miles north of the Burma city of Akyab on the Bay of Bengal.

Heavy fighting is progressing and enemy losses in three days of battle thus far are substantial, the announcement said.

WOUNDED DOG VETERAN OF WAR BACK HOME WITH MASTER NEAR SABINA

Brown, naval aide; Press Secretary Stephen Early and Miss Grace Tully, personal secretary.

Fala, the chief executive's Scottish pup, scurried about everywhere.

Mr. Roosevelt left Washington Saturday, and crossed the international boundary into the Dominion shortly after last midnight.

Trip Kept Secret

The President's train passed through Montreal early today and is in service too and now is in England. Both dogs grew up on Pavey's small farm near Sabina. Large and jovial, Pavey is known as a lover of dogs and horses.

Last March, Tony's discharge from the service became official. He had been treated at a hospital in Cincinnati—a long three months of operations which made his injured hip as good as new but left him with scars he will carry to his grave.

Pavey called at the dog hospital as soon as he was permitted to do so. Tony was lying far at the end of a long row of kennels when Pavey walked in. Tony lifted his head, sniffed a few times and then began calling to his master, long before he had seen him.

Not to be different, Tony's discharge is recorded according to form in the Clinton County Recorder's Office. Miss Emily Giffin, county recorder, attended to that detail personally.

Pavey kept track of Tony's activities while he was overseas via servicemen who wrote him from time to time about Tony's progress. He wore a special uniform while on duty designed so that he could carry vital messages through places where men couldn't go.

All that is only a memory for Tony now. Perhaps as he dozes in the sunlight, the sounds of battle will come back to him and he will whine in his sleep. But when he wakes, he will be secure on the farm where he was born and there will be a juicy bone waiting for breakfast.

ROOSEVELT, CHURCHILL MEET AGAIN IN CANADA TO LAY VICTORY PLANS

came on here immediately, but his trip from the United States was kept secret all the way.

The American chiefs of staff already were here—Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Admiral Ernest J. King and Admiral William D. Leahy.

Churchill reached Halifax by ship, accompanied by Britain's top-ranking military commanders.

On the spot where a year ago plans were perfected for the campaign now unfolding successfully in Europe, the two Allied leaders and their aides were expected to discuss the new problems which will arise with victory over Germany and map measures to hasten the downfall of Japan.

New powers for the European Advisory Commission to bridge the shadowland between Germany's final collapse and creation of a new world security unit were believed a prime topic of the agenda.

Formal announcement of Churchill's arrival in Canada—which had been the subject of much advance speculation—was made at a press conference summoned in the Chateau Frontenac by U. S. and Canadian officials late yesterday.

The Prime Minister, who was accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, was his usual jaunty self when he disembarked at Halifax. Wearing his familiar blue Trinity House uniform and flourishing his cigar, he led a crowd in song during the hour between his arrival and the departure of two special trains carrying his party to Quebec.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King arrived here from Ottawa last night to act as host to Churchill and Roosevelt.

west of Florence and reached the Gothic line defenses, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Some Fifth Army units, headquarters said, reached Ussella, 17 miles northwest of Florence and only 35 miles south of the great Po valley industrial city and communications center of Bologna.

Farther west American troops pushed well into the outskirts of Pistoia and occupied high ground dominating the town from the northeast while elements of the 92nd infantry division reached the Gothic line defenses at Zezzera, 6½ miles northeast of Lucca.

The Nazis offered scant opposition to the Fifth Army although some enemy shells fell on patrols which took Monte Mignano, 13 miles due north of Florence.

British heavy bombers smashed at defense of Le Havre, shelled Sunday by the battleship Warspite. Mosquito bombers struck Berlin last night, capping a day of widespread air attacks over the battlefield, a blow by 1,100 U. S. big bombers on five prime targets in southwestern Germany and a 500-plane raid rising from Italy against oil refineries in the Vienna area.

German Border Near

In western France, the Americans were less than 10 miles from the German frontier at two points 70 miles apart. They captured Luxembourg, the capital of the pocket duchy bordering the Rhineland and Saarland, in one thrust and reportedly threw shells into Aachen, German border city, in the other forward movement.

The biggest air fight since the invasion swirled over the Rhineland and interior Germany. American air forces smashed at gun emplacements blocking the ground assault and at oil refineries feeding power into German resistance.

American fighters shot down 130 German fighters, their biggest bag over Germany. Medium Marauder bombers and Havocs knocked out six German big gun emplacements standing in the way of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army drive across the Moselle in eastern France.

From Nancy and Metz—Patton's sector—north through Luxembourg to Limburg, the Americans were running into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line.

They were under the fire of German heavy guns along the Moselle. Around Limburg, beyond the captured fortress city of Liege, they were encountering the heaviest minefields seen since they cracked through Normandy.

Supreme headquarters did not say where the British crossing into Holland had taken place, but front line dispatches indicated it was at a point about 35 miles from the German border.

Big Push Prelude

To the north other U. S. First Army units were within 8½ miles of the German and Dutch frontiers and had linked with the British Second Army in preparation for a massive assault on the northern portion of the Siegfried line.

Ahead of the American and British units which joined above the captured Belgian town of Hasselt (27,000), was the weakest link in the German defense chain—the 70 miles of hastily-built fortifications from Aachen north to Kleve, terminus of the Siegfried line. This portion of the Siegfried line or Westwall protects the Rhineland and the industrial cities of Cologne and Düsseldorf.

American troops which took the city of Luxembourg were fighting to broaden out into the town of Mersch, slightly over 10 miles to the north.

The attack of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army toward the Saar has carried over 50 miles beyond Sedan and 35 miles east of Montmedy where the Americans sliced through the northernmost hinge of the old Maginot line. The Duchy of Luxembourg, a coal and iron region of 999 square miles, was overrun by the Germans in 1940.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACHER

The battle for the approaches to the Siegfried Line already is producing some of the fiercest fighting since D-Day, as was inevitable in view of the fact that Hitler has elected to make his last big stand against the Western Allies in the more than 400 miles of powerful and intricate defenses comprising this shield of the Reich.

One wishes that it were otherwise—that the Nazi dictator would cease his useless resistance and thus stop the bloodshed. Still, his mulish persistence in helping the Allies achieve their great objective of outlasting war, for it means that the problem of German aggression is going to be ironed out to the last wrinkle, where there no struggle on German soil the seed of militarism might remain. If the Allies have to blast their way across Hitler's Reich there won't be any fight left in it when we've finished.

The German strategy is one of delay—not with the idea of victory but in hope that something may turn up to ease their plight in defeat. The Nazi resistance has stiffened greatly as the Allies have approached the German frontier. This resistance is calculated to stand off the Allied onslaught against the Siegfried Line itself so as to give the Hitlerites a chance to reorganize their shattered forces after the disastrous retreat from the coast, and to scrape up as many reserves as possible for the last ditch stand in the line.

So, while the Allies are getting ahead famously with their job, the wild race of pursuers and pursued across the rolling fields of France has slowed up. This has been due not only to increasing German resistance but to the great and speedy lengthening of our communications from our supply base on the coast. The task of moving up supplies for the attack on the Siegfried Line is huge and we can't expect things to move as fast as they have been doing.

Well, now, let's see if we can't dig the high spots out of the rather involved operations of the five Allied armies which are lashing the snarling Nazi beast back into its own lair. We start with the Canadian First Army which has been assigned the vital task of clearing the still resisting German garrisons out of the Channel ports. Included in the latest Canadian progress is the capture of Wissant, just below the important port of Calais, and the famous port of Zeebrugge, close to the Dutch-Belgian border. Liberation of the Channel harbors will ease the Allied supply problem immensely.

Next to the Canadians is the British Second Army which is across the Albert Canal in Belgium and is driving northeastward toward the upper flank of the Siegfried Line, which runs to Cleve, close to the Dutch border. The British also have made contact with the American First Army on their right, and units from the two are heading for Aachen and Cologne.

This push towards Cologne is worth watching. Just beyond Aachen lies the Siegfried Line, but once that is broken the route leads into great reaches of open country where are many of Germany's greatest war industries. Much of the terrain is good for exploitation by fast-moving tanks. And, whisper, that's on the direct route to Berlin.

The American First Army covers a wide front and today's report records its liberation of the city of Luxembourg. This place is capital of the Duchy of the same name. Next on the south comes two-gun Patton's American Third Army which is encountering very heavy fighting in the Metz sector where it has driven bridgeheads across the Moselle River. This is another good spot to watch, since the fortified city of Metz, which had its origin in pre-Roman days, stands at another of the gateways into Germany.

Below Patton the American Seventh Army is driving up from Southern France to the Belfort

THREE INJURED, ONE SERIOUSLY, IN AUTO CRASH

Xenia Man Steps in Front of Car; Jeffersonville Women Are Injured

John Combs, 63, employee of the Hoover and Allison Co., Xenia, is in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, suffering from compound fractures of both legs and other injuries, and two Jeffersonville women are recovering from injuries sustained when the car in which they were riding struck Combs in front of his home just east of Xenia, the car then collided with a utility pole.

The accident occurred when Miss Helen Baker, Jeffersonville, was enroute home from Patterson Field, where she is employed, and with her was Mrs. Margaret Barnes of Jeffersonville, both of whom were injured severely.

Combs had just stepped from an automobile in which he was riding and came from behind the car and started across the highway in front of Miss Baker's car.

In endeavoring to avoid striking Combs, Miss Baker lost control of the car and it crashed into a telephone pole. She suffered chest injuries. Wilbur Baker, father of Miss Baker, also a passenger in the car, was bruised but not badly hurt.

When Miss Baker's car hit Combs, both of his legs were badly broken and he was hurled some distance, receiving other injuries. His condition is critical.

Lecture Given Sunday On Christian Science

A public lecture on Christian Science, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Washington C. H., was given in the High School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon. The speaker, Will B. Davis, C. S., of Chicago, Illinois, a member of the Board of Lectureship, of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, was introduced by Marvin E. Thornburg who spoke a message of welcome to the audience.

The subject of Mr. Davis' lecture was "Christian Science: What It Is and How It Heals" and in part he spoke as follows: "Usually when people take up the study of Christian Science they are searching for release from pain or sorrow, little dreaming that the underlying Principle of Christian Science is regeneration through a clearer concept of God and His laws. Two questions come naturally to the beginner: (1) What is Christian Science? (2) How does Christian Science accomplish its healing work?"

"I am sure there are some basic fundamentals upon which we can all agree. For example, is it not true that practically everyone in this audience is willing to accept the conclusion that there is, there must be, a creative intelligence, which made and controls the universe including man? This supreme intelligence or Mind we all no doubt are willing to call God. We cannot conceive of human mind or power as being capable of creating the universe, holding the earth in its orbit, or maintaining the life and beauty expressed in what we have been taught to call nature. So we can agree that God is not a person: He is infinite intelligence or Mind, the only possible cause or creator.

"Christian Science is the infallible law of God, demonstrating the rule of spiritual healing which has always been available. Christ Jesus came to teach mortals how to make use of this unerring Principle, to show mankind how to rise above the ills, discords, and disasters of human living through consciousness of man's at-one-ment with infinite Spirit or Mind.

"Jesus declared that his healing work was accomplished through his utilization of divine power. He said, 'I can of mine own self do nothing.' And again he declared, 'The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.' Through an understanding of the ever-presence and availability of the one omnipotent God or Father, miracles were performed by the ancient prophets; but until Jesus taught and illustrated the law of healing, through his comprehension of God as Love, only a few seemed able to utilize this divine Principle successfully in dispelling the inharmonies of human affairs.

"The scientific method employed by Jesus is recorded in the inspired writings of the Bible, a fact which becomes more and more evident after the way has been pointed out; but this was not discovered until 1866. It was then that Mary Baker Eddy, after a lifetime of faithful Bible study and communion with God, discovered the divine laws of healing which Christ Jesus utilized. She named her discovery Christian Science, and, in the years which followed, spent in listening for divine revelation, she wrote down, and thereby made easily available to all, the scientific rules of Christian healing. Her book 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' contains the complete statement of Christian Science.

"Anyone who is an alert Bible scholar may learn through an attentive examination of our textbook that the rules of healing given by Mrs. Eddy were obtained through a close study of the Bible and particularly of the healing works of Jesus.

"If we are to be at one with God we must learn how to follow in the footsteps of the humble Nazarene. We must be obedient to Paul's admonition, 'Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.' How plainly the beloved apostle has declared here that God is not a person, but supreme intelligence, or Mind, and that our need is to recognize our close communion, or at-one-ment, with the Mind which is God.

"We can discern through Paul's inspired instruction why Mrs. Eddy teaches us to make a clear differentiation between Jesus the human man and the Christ or Truth which Jesus expressed. The Christ-consciousness may be entertained by you and me, and it is through allowing the Christ to enter human consciousness that healing is accomplished through Christian Science.

"And now I am going to give you a very interesting and practical definition of Christian Science—not my own words, but a declaration made by its Discoverer and Founder. On page 160 of her book 'The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany,' Mrs. Eddy writes: 'To live so as to keep human consciousness in constant relation with the divine, the spiritual, and the eternal, is to individualize infinite power; and this is Christian Science.'

"Christian Science then is a method of living; it is that law of God which enables us so to live our human lives that we may express the Christ and thus demonstrate divine power in individual human experience. There is a requirement in the words I have quoted which cannot be overlooked. A way of living must be found that will enable us to 'keep human consciousness in constant relation with the divine.'

"In the discussion so far we have approached the answer to the second phase of our subject, namely: 'How does Christian Science heal?' In other words, just what is the method employed by Christian Scientists in healing all manner of discord, lack, and disease? A complete answer to this question cannot be given in a short lecture. In replying to a very similar question, Mrs. Eddy declares (Science and Health, p. 493), 'A full answer to the above question involves teaching, which enables the healer to demonstrate and prove for himself the Principle and rule of Christian Science or metaphysical healing.' Thorough, consistent study of Science and Health and Mrs. Eddy's other writings not only teaches us how Christian Science heals, but it will enable any sincere student to heal himself and others.

"The first requirement in the healing activity is to learn the true nature of God. We have agreed together that God is supreme intelligence or Mind, the only possible creative power or cause. In the Glossary of Science and Health, p. 587) we find this definition: 'God. The great I am; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love; all substance; intelligence.' On page 465 of our textbook Mrs. Eddy tells us that the seven synonyms for God which she uses in the definition just quoted are 'intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity.' Christian Scientists find inspiration, joy, and healing through learning more of God's wholeness or completeness, as they prayerfully consider these synonymous terms.

"From a background of a constantly expanding appreciation of God's ever-present omnipotence and infinite love, we learn to heal through Christian Science. We learn to heal as we realize that the spiritual man of God's creating must be as perfect as his creator."

Learning What War Means
The battle of Germany has begun. For the first time in our history American forces are engaging the Germans in some spots on their own "sacred soil." It is a new chapter in a history which has been repeating itself at an accelerated rate, with sons of the doughboys of the first AEF rolling almost unopposed over ground where their fathers fought and died to gain a few yards. Now that history has run past the point where it ended in World War I.

It may be well for the world and for Germany that this is happening. It is time that the German people saw and felt the scourge of war which their armies have loosed upon Europe twice in a generation. Perhaps if they had seen and felt it in 1918 this present war would not have come.

But the German people did not see the breakup of their military machine on their very doorstep. Thus the Kaiser's armies were able to straggle home in a semblance of order, at least enough for Hitler to be able to put across his myth that the war had been lost at home, not in the field.

World War I was lost in the field, and three months before the armistice. It was then that the general staff lost heart, went on the defensive, and urged the government to seek peace. Many military historians believe there was considerable fight left in the German army at the end. But its general staff preferred to quit and save the homeland from devastation.

Certainly the German military situation was desperate, and no one can blame the Allies for ending the struggle. The cost of lives had been frightful. Even those who saw that Germany needed a further lesson could not deny a world that was weary and longed for peace.

Today Germany's situation is again perilous. In many ways it is worse than at the same time in 1918, when the Germans were fighting on only one front and their allies were still in the war. But Adolf Hitler is not a Ludendorff or a Hindenburg. He knows that he is hated and doomed. And conscience has made him more desperate than cowardly. Though the end may come quickly, it is certain that if Hitler remains in power he will try to drag Germany down with him in a bloody and lingering struggle.

There will be a tragic cost of American and Allied soldiers' lives to be paid in the battle of Germany. But it is a sacrifice that may be necessary to erase from German minds the poisonous thought that they are invincible and inviolate.

Campus Gospel
If, as some people declare, religion is showing a decline today, it is not from a lack of clear voices.
Here is an impressive statement from David Elton Trueblood, professor of the philosophy of religion at Stanford University, in a new book on "The Predicament of Modern Man."
"What mankind desperately needs," he says, "is Justice, Mercy and Truth, but what we are offered is some ugly stained-glass windows and a holy tone and a collection of platitudes."

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Both Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill are agreed that there have been few stranger political footfalls than the controversy over who was responsible for failure to fortify Guam.

Since we entered World War II, I am sure there have been more than 20,000 words of speeches on the floor of Congress and articles written into the Congressional Record defending Congress' stand on the matter. Senate Navy Affairs Committee Chairman Walsh even had a complete investigation and report made on the matter. The controversy almost had died down, however, when the recent recapture of Guam and President Roosevelt's statement in his Bremerton, Wash., speech that "we were not allowed to fortify Guam" brought it back into the political picture.

The record is clear and has been printed, but as is sometimes the case, the black and white record doesn't tell all the story by any means.

Facts on the record and off

are simply these:

In 1938, R. Adm. A. J. Heppburn, heading a committee set up by Congress to make recommendations on improving the Navy, suggested that $80,000,000 be appropriated to establish a seaplane and submarine base at Guam.

No appropriation bill ever came before Congress with this item in it, but in 1939, the Navy budget did include $5,000,000 for dredging and improving the Guam harbor. That year, four Democrats, all World War I veterans, led a fight against the measure on the floor of the House and a coalition of 64 Democrats and 168 Republicans defeated the item. The Senate made no effort to put it back in the bill.

Two years later and ten months before Pearl Harbor, Congress did appropriate $4,700,000 for harbor improvements on Guam.

Now, off the record:

The Navy didn't ask the full appropriation for fortifications and new bases as outlined in the Heppburn report because it knew very well it would never get it. Adm. William Leahy (now President Roosevelt's chief of staff), in hearings on the 1939 bill, was forced to declare 13 times in almost as many minutes that "we are not asking for authority to fortify Guam." The necessity for that many denials of intent shows clearly what the attitude of at least some members of the committee was.

And most important of all, it wouldn't have made any difference anyway. To carry out Adm. Heppburn's recommendations would have taken a good many more years than there were between 1939 and Pearl Harbor and even then, military experts here say, Guam would have provided no more than a delayed action of minor consequence. Even the Heppburn report asked for nothing more than a submarine and seaplane base and recommended nothing like the defensive fortifications of a Corregidor or Pearl Harbor.

A good many members of Congress would be happy to see this little political bean bag laid away in a museum of untalented history for all time.

tion plate full of dimes." And after this pastoral punch on the nose, perhaps the reader is interested enough to run through the rest of the statement.

The professor wants "a redemptive society" such as St. Augustine preached in his generation. Says Prof. Trueblood:

"Christianity won in the Roman Empire not chiefly as a belief, but more as a self-conscious fellowship. A group of 50 really devoted Christians who are not in the least apologetic, and who are willing to make the spread of the gospel their first interest, would mightily affect any campus in the country, no matter how great the initial opposition might be. The same can be said of an average town. The prospects for the gospel might be better if the average town had only a few dozen Christians in the place of the few thousand church members now listed."

This leaves the readers breathless. But it might be worth some thought.

War and Atheism
Strange as it seems at first thought, war seems to promote religion. There is more faith, perhaps, at the fighting front, than there is in normal life. An American war correspondent, Robert Richards, tells this little story of an experience at a famous church in Paris.

When mass ended, the correspondent on his way out stopped to speak to a priest who stood at the door. The priest remarked with a smile: "I have heard, Monsieur, that an American soldier once said there are no atheists on the battlefield." The correspondent verified the remark. Thereupon the priest continued: "I am also happy to tell you this—there are no atheists at Notre Dame."

Thus men of war and men of peace can agree.

Medical Problem of 'Phantom Limb'
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
WE MUST prepare ourselves for the sight of many of our young friends returning with mutilations of one kind or another. The man with an amputated leg or arm may experience and probably will tell you of what seems to him a peculiar feeling as if the lost limb were still there. This is known as "phantom limb."

This is not a new subject in medical science. It is as old, I am sorry to say, as warfare. After every war the world is exposed once more to the sad experience of knowing about it in wholesale quantity. Amboise Pare, the stout old military surgeon of the French wars of Francis the First, and Charles IX, described it first in 1551. Dr. Weir Mitchell, the famous novelist doctor of Philadelphia, studied the symptom in our Civil War soldier casualties, and to him we owe most of our knowledge of these phenomena.

In about 95 per cent of all cases the patient with an amputation feels the sensation as if the limb were still there. In most instances it goes away in time. It is due, of course, to the fact that the cut nerves are accustomed to carrying the sensations from the skin and periphery of the limb and even if they are severed any stimulation of them arouses only the same old sensations they have always been in the habit of carrying. Amputations of the arms carry greater conviction that the limb is still there than of the legs.

Feeling of Abnormality
The sensation is usually painless, but even so there is a feeling of abnormality. But sometimes it is quite painful. In such cases there is a curling in of the nerve ends in healing and these "neuromata" may have to be injected with alcohol.

The sensations besides pain felt in the phantom are itching, warmth, throbbing and cramping, and these are sufficiently uncomfortable to say the least.

One very strange feature of the condition of phantom limb, whether it is painful or not is that the phantom is always felt as if it were in exactly the position it was in at the time of amputation. "It is as if the postural model had become frozen when normal stimulation ceased."

SYNOPSIS
A leading and popular resident of Talbot, sleepy little Chesapeake Bay village, is MRS. EUNICE REYNOLDS, elderly and unable to walk, but the possessor of young ideas. She has been dominated by her strong-willed granddaughter, LAURA, who lives with her. Mrs. Reynolds hires ANNE WILSON, personable young New Yorker, to be her nurse. Longtime fiance of Laura is RUSSELL SMITH, conservative young attorney. The placidity of Russell's life is shattered by the arrival, after a long absence, of his outspoken, liberal brother, DAN.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
SOMEHOW the boating incident made a difference in Anne's feelings toward Talbot and everyone in it. She knew everyone in the place was talking about her now, even if they hadn't been before. It made no difference that everyone sympathized with her and said Dan Smith had only taken her out in the little scrappy-cat so he could dump her over and then play the hero by rescuing her. Miss Withers appointed herself a committee of one to call on her and express the general feeling. Even Laura was far more human than usual when Dan appeared carrying the limp, dripping figure in his arms and with a strange look in his eyes which was half fear and half exultation.

But it was that part which rankled most in Anne's mind. If she had stuck to her scorn and had swam ashore, she would have felt a sort of triumph. But instead she had gone weak and Dan had had to rescue her. She had even fainted, and therefore he had carried her to the house in his arms. She had regained consciousness to find Laura bending over her anxiously, saying, "I hope you're all right. Dr. Banning is on the way here." She had not wanted Laura or Dr. Banning or anyone else, but she had been unable to voice any protest even when she was kept in bed the rest of the day and not allowed up until the following morning.

Like all those who care for the sick, she had a score of being sick herself. And next day everyone had to speak to her on the street and tell her how sorry they were and how nothing better was ever to be expected of Dan Smith. When she tried to explain it had only been an accident and quite unavoidable, people smiled knowingly and told her how nice she was to put it that way—but they knew Dan Smith. Everyone said it. Everyone knew Dan Smith. Even old Mrs. Reynolds herself sighed and said everyone was right about Dan.

It was maddening. She had wanted something to happen to make people more friendly toward her because she liked the place so much; but now it had happened, she wanted to be let alone. There was no need for people to stop her on Morris street a week or ten days later and ask her if she had recovered. There had been nothing to recover from except that her pride was hurt and her swimming had failed her at the most inopportune time. Just when she had wanted to prove to Dan, and still more to herself, that she was quite able to take care of herself under any and all circumstances, her strenuous had failed her. It was so humiliating to have copped the whole affair by fainting like a schoolgirl or worse still, as if she had wanted Dan Smith to save her and then carry her in his arms.

It might have made her feel a little better about the whole thing if Dan himself had come around in a contrite mood and she had been able to put him in his place and let him understand what he had done was of no importance. But Dan was the only one in Talbot whom she didn't see in the next few days—or, at least, it seemed that way. Old Mrs. Reynolds had given him a piece of her mind in spite of her liking for him because, after all, she had seen him tip the boat over. She didn't tell anyone about it, but it seemed she didn't need to. Everyone got the story pat. So Mrs. Reynolds was furious at Dan for the first time in her life and wanted no explanation from him. She liked Anne. Anne was wonderful to her. She told Russell if she saw Dan she'd take great pleasure in wringing his neck for him.

Russell had driven to Salisbury the day it happened and had spent the night there. He didn't hear about it until he got home the next evening after a busy day at his office in Weston. He found Mrs. Gander, his housekeeper, in charge and bubbling over with the news, which she gave in bluntest form. Dan had taken Anne Wilson out in a boat and tried to drown her. Mrs. Gander had thoroughly enjoyed Russell's look of consternation. She had cooked dinner for him, which was not part of her job, just to be present and tell him. She felt it squared her up a little with Dan, whom she hated because she felt he was doing her out of work.

Russell had sensed her triumph and asked calmly, "Where's Dan?" "He's gone. He's afraid of you, I reckon."

"My brother has no reason to be afraid of me, Mrs. Gander. And I'm quite sure he wouldn't try to drown Miss Wilson. He probably saved her."

"He saved her, all right. Mrs. Sanders told me. He carried her home and it was more like hugging her than carrying. Mrs. Sanders saw it and told me."

Russell frowned and went to Dan's room. He didn't want Dan to be gone, though he feared it was true enough. He had been darning to hope Dan was settling down. All at once the realization swept over him that Dan had come to fill a place in his life these past two weeks. Somehow things had been different and life had had more color, more meaning. He had liked Dan's sturdy independence in refusing to be outfitted with new clothes and in working at whatever little jobs he could pick up instead of expecting something to be found for him. Russell had begun to make plans on a new and chastened Dan.

Ohio Republicans Now Chide Democrats

By EARL BERKLEY
WASHINGTON—Ohio Republicans—intensely interested in 1944 politics because their governor, John W. Bricker, is their party's vice presidential nominee—are calling the Democrats about-facers when it comes to sentiment on how long presidents should stay in office.

Backing Rep. Tom Jenkins' proposal to allow only two terms of four years each, the Ohioans have something which they are sure will cause some red faces. It is the Democrat platform of 1912, dug from dusty files by Jenkins, who points with delight to an obscure plank which would limit presidents to just one term.

"We favor," the plank reads, "a single presidential term, and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution making the president of the United States ineligible for reelection and we pledge the candidate of this convention (in Baltimore) to this principle."

Woodrow Wilson was elected president on that platform, but says Jenkins, "the Democratic party apparently forgot the declaration because it nominated Wilson for a second term in 1916, and the first sentence of the platform of that year said merely

"we endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson."

Jenkins' resolution, requiring a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate, proposes an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting more than two terms. The amendment would be subject to the customary ratification by three-fourths of the states.

It would not affect the current campaign, nor prevent President Roosevelt from serving a fourth term if he is elected. But in the future no president could serve more than two terms, successive or otherwise.

"But," a joshing colleague asked Jenkins, "what if the Republicans want a third term sometime?"

They won't, the Ironton Representative said, and even if they did they're not entitled to it. Here's his reasoning:

"An amendment to the Constitution to limit presidential tenure to two terms of four years each should be adopted. The matter has been the subject of public discussion for many years and I have no doubt that the American people, regardless of politics, favor a limitation of this kind. George Washington refused to accept three terms and so did Jefferson and Jackson and all the early presidents because they fully appreciate what it meant to serve under a monarch."

Agitation for sharp tax cuts after the war is drawing the interest of Ohio members of Congress. None has committed himself as to figures but there is growing sentiment for a reduction of as much as half the current assessments on income.

One Ohioan suggests that revisions will be influenced by national high taxes to trim down the national debt; drastic income slackening would require big tax cuts. The consensus is that revenue from income will be halved as soon as possible.

Fifteen Guests Attend Dinner Sunday Evening

Fifteen members of the city's younger set were invited to the home of Miss Amelia Pensyl, Sunday evening, where she and Miss Marjorie Evans combined hospitalities to entertain the group with a dinner party. The affair was held as a farewell party for several members of the group who are leaving for various colleges in the next few weeks.

Covers were laid at one large table and one small for the serving of a most delicious and appetizing meal. Centering each table were prettily arranged centerpieces of cut flowers. The hour spent at the dinner table was one of prolonged enjoyment for the guests, the hostesses graciously extending the many pleasures of the evening.

Later the group attended the current showing of "Step Lively" at the Fayette Theater. Those attending were the Misses Nancy Lee James, Frannie McDonald, Marie Marchant, Evelyn Long, Bobby Lou Speaks, Helen Adams, Jean McCoy, Martha Varlas, Virginia Ann Bidwell, Jo Ann Crouse, Mary Sexton, Judith Paul, Barbara Parker, Martha Hughes, Eileen Noland and the co-hostesses.

Mrs. Valetta Dews Guest of Honor At Birthday Party

Mrs. Valetta Dews was the guest of honor at a delightful birthday party entertained by Mrs. Mac Dews at her home Friday evening, when Mrs. Dews was complimented by her friends on her natal anniversary.

Those enjoying the evening of games and informal visiting conducted by the hostess were Mrs. Walter Snider of Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reser, grandchildren, Donald and Dale, Mrs. I. A. Miller and granddaughter, Patty, Mrs. Frank Dorn, Mrs. R. E. Browning, Mrs. Lon Mark and Miss Ethel Dews.

The serving of refreshments by the hostess was enjoyed at a late hour, the hostess being assisted by her husband and daughter, Ann, in extending the many pleasures of the evening. For the serving the guests were seated at the dining room table which was covered with a lovely lace cloth and centered with a bowl of fall flowers. The hour spent there was a happy one.

Marjorie Keller Exchanges Vows with Sgt. Jas. Bentley In Wadsworth Church

Sgt. and Mrs. James Bentley

Standing before a hearth banked with palms and sprays of lacy fern and white gladioli, Miss Marjorie Keller became the bride of Sergeant James V. Bentley at an impressively simple but beautiful ceremony performed Wednesday evening, September sixth, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keller, Broad Street, in Wadsworth. Officiating at the double ring wedding service which united the Wadsworth girl and the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bentley of South Solon, was Rev. E. G. Klotz.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in an aqua street length dress with which she wore an orchid shoulder corsage and black accessories. Attending the couple were Mrs. Chester Jones of Chicago, and Ray Bentley, brother of the bridegroom. Mrs. Jones, a bride of last June at whose wedding Miss Keller served as bridesmaid, chose a yellow ensemble with a corsage of yellow baby mums and delicate pink rose buds.

Approximately thirty guests, including members of the immediate family and close friends attended the ceremony and reception which followed. Portions of the cleverly decorated wedding cake which featured a bride and soldier bridegroom in miniature, and other refreshments, were served before the newlyweds left to make their temporary home in Texas. A gold color suit was Mrs. Bentley's choice for a going-away costume.

An alumnus of Wadsworth High School, the bride also attended Ohio University, Athens, and has been employed at the Babcock and Wilcox Company in Barberton. Sgt. Bentley, a graduate of Jeffersonville High School, was granted a one week furlough from duty in the Air Force at Eagle Pass, Texas, where he is stationed.

A soft cotton floor mop kept barely damp with a mixture of three parts of kerosene and one part of white mineral oil is excellent for dry mopping.

When buying children's clothes, remember measurements change rapidly so buy clothes large enough to fit for two years.

IN days of ample telephone facilities, when someone moved, we left the telephone in place so that it might be connected for the next person moving. Today it is a different story. There is a serious shortage of the many items which go to make up telephone service, including telephone instruments. Production of all telephone equipment was stopped to enable the manufacturers to go into full war production.

As a result, subscribers' unfilled orders are mounting daily. Many persons will be required to do without service for the duration—and longer as the end of the war will not solve our problem. Telephones in vacant houses or apartments must be recovered and installed elsewhere for someone on our waiting list. The only fair way is to give every-one service in his proper turn.

Every telephone, which is recovered and put back into service, brings your installation closer. Your co-operation in aiding our installers to remove left-in instruments enables us to use all available facilities efficiently. Thanks for your help.

TRAINING REAL 'DOGS OF WAR' BY THOUSANDS

Sgt. Carl Ellison Expert in Unusual Branch of The Armed Service

Sgt. Carl Ellison, who is home from Keesler Field, Biloxi, Miss., for a short time, is one of Uncle Sam's soldiers who sees that the "dogs of war" are fully trained and ready for battle before they are unleashed.

Sgt. Ellison, who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ellison and his daughter, Dixie Lee, on East Court Street, and his sister, Mrs. Hazel Beatty, has assisted in training large numbers of dogs that are used at the battlefield. Some of these dogs, which have been shipped overseas by the thousands, have saved many lives of outposts and by their keen sense of smell and hearing, have made it possible for sentries to kill many of the enemy as they sought to approach under cover of darkness, or through tangled jungles.

Sgt. Ellison entered the service in March, 1942, and by reason of his knowledge and love for dogs, was assigned to a unit to train dogs for watch duty at the front, and reports drifting back from the jungles and other battlefronts, tell of the great work done by the animals, who are so thoroughly trained that they never permit an enemy to approach their post without giving warning to the sentry.

Many a Jap, German and other enemy has lost his life while endeavoring to steal through the American lines after nightfall, or through the jungles during daylight when the dogs have given warning by low, vicious growls, or simply standing on the alert and pointing their noses toward the approaching enemy, so that the enemy could be killed by the guard they were with.

There are several large training centers for the dogs and all of the thousands of dogs that have been schooled and sent to the front, have been donated for the duration of the war. When they are returned, they are "re-trained" or trained not to regard everything and everyone an enemy.

Sgt. Ellison has been stationed at Fort Robison, Neb., part of the time, as well as at Keesler Field, and during his 18 months in service has directed the training of large numbers of the animals. Any good dog weighing 50 pounds or more; over 23 inches at the shoulders, and over a year old, is eligible to become a "war dog."

According to Sgt. Ellison, shots are given the dogs and they are put through a careful line of schooling just as soldiers are, and they must attain a high degree of efficiency before they are sent from training camps to the front.

Ellison returns to Keesler Field this week, and will go from there to the Nebraska camp once more.

OLIVE, BUENA VISTA MERGE THEIR P-T A'S

New Organization Is Called Community Circle

Olive and Buena Vista Schools PTA organizations are no more. The two schools were consolidated in August, with all Buena Vista pupils going to Olive School. Since then, the two separate PTAs have been merged into the Green Township Community Circle. President of the newly-formed council is C. C. Eakins. Virtus Kruse is vice-president, Mrs. Everett Page, secretary and Oren Patton, treasurer.

The organization will have monthly potluck meetings in the town hall at Buena Vista, it was decided. Committees for the next meeting are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Eakins, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Patton and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Theobald.

The practice of selling art by auction in England dates from the 17th century.

FIRST NEW SOYBEANS ARE MARKETED HERE

Harvesting To Be General After This Week

The first soybeans harvested this season were marketed at the McDonald Elevator, Saturday, and were harvested by Glenn Griffith, residing north of Washington C. H.

The beans were yellow, tested 17.75 percent moisture, and weighed 52 pounds to the bushel.

Fourteen percent is the recognized standard for soybeans, and based on this percentage, the basic price fixed by the government for yellow beans is $2.04 per bushel, with six cents extra per bushel for choice beans.

Black and brown soybeans bring 20 cents less per bushel.

It is expected the soybean harvest will not get under way fully for a week or more.

PFC. R. K. FOUNTAIN WOUNDED IN ACTION

Good Hope Boy Recovering in Italy

Pfc. Robert K. Fountain, 22 year old infantryman son of Mrs. Bessie O. Fountain, Good Hope, today is recovering from wounds, somewhere in Italy.

Mrs. Fountain said he was "up and around" after being wounded July 10. She did not know the extent of his wounds, however. The brief War Department notification included few details.

Pfc. Fountain entered the service in December, 1943. He began his overseas duty in March and was in Italy most of the time. He is a graduate of Wayne High School and was employed at Patterson Field when he entered the service.

MORTGAGE OF CHURCH BURNED HERE SUNDAY

Special Services Celebrate Debt Lifting by the Christian Church

Sunday was a red-letter day in the annals of the North Street Church of Christ, where special services were held in connection with the formal mortgage burning which leaves the church free of indebtedness after many years of effort during which the work of paying for the attractive edifice has been carried out systematically and the amount reduced year by year.

A campaign launched early this year and completed in July, resulted in the final amount being subscribed that made it possible to pay off the obligations of the church.

It was an all day event at the church, starting with Bible School in the morning, and special worship services at the usual hour, during which Rev. R. B. Carver spoke on "The Twin Words."

Following the forenoon services 150 members and friends participated in the elaborate basket dinner, which was served in the basement, and thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The deaconesses had charge of the dining room and the Crusader's Class did the decorating. The theme of the dinner was "Victory Through Christ," and in helping carry this out, white crosses adorned each table.

After the dinner, the auditorium was filled for the formal mortgage burning ceremonies and Rev. James DeForest Murch, of Cincinnati, delivered the sermon on "The Church and the Post-war World."

During his sermon he spoke of the oppression suffered by the church, and the battles it has waged against evil and urged the members of the local church to prepare for the work that is to follow the war.

Rev. Carver spoke briefly before the mortgage was burned, and also read letters of congratulation from three former pastors who were unable to be present—Revs. Geo. E. Groves, J. A. Goddard and Fred I. Gardner. Also a letter from Rev. Edward J. Cain, pastor of the South Side Church of Christ.

Ursa Thornhill, one of the elders, lighted the match, and Alfred Trout, Leo Cox and Harry Flint, trustees, assisted with the mortgage burning.

During the afternoon services all stood in silent prayer for a minute, for the charter members of the church and for those who had labored hard to lift the mortgage.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. R. A. HOLAHAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Rebecca A. Holahan were held Monday at 10:30 A.M. at the Hook Funeral Home.

Rev. E. R. Rector, pastor of the Jeffersonville Methodist Church, was in charge of the services. He read the two hymns, "In the Garden" and "Crossing the Bar," delivered the sermon, offered prayer and read the scriptures.

Burial was made in the family lot of the Washington C. H. cemetery. Pallbearers were Loren Yoho, George Worrell, Gregg

AUTOS IN CRASH, TWO ARE INJURED

Xenia Driver Is Sought Following Crash

Sheriff W. H. Icenhower was Monday seeking James Hargo, of Xenia, against who he had filed information in Common Pleas Court for failing to give his name after an automobile listed in his name had collided with a car driven by Miss Ruth McMasters who was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Richard E. Jones.

Both women were painfully injured and their car was badly wrecked. The Xenia car also was wrecked.

Following the wreck the driver refused to give his name and left the scene.

The crash occurred on the Jamestown road a half mile west of the Sugar Creek bridge, about midnight Sunday night.

Sheriff Icenhower was called to the scene and had the Xenia car towed into this city to remain until the matter is cleared up.

OHIOANS AND BAZOOKAS STOP NAZIS AS THEIR BIT IN DRIVE INTO FRANCE

They watched the steel monster maneuver toward their position which was so vital it would give the tank control of the terrain in their company's vicinity.

The two GI's cupped their hands around bazooka rockets.

Now it was easy to distinguish German infantrymen—about 30 of them moving forward behind the tank.

Seventy five yards. Young could have pulled the trigger, but a mist partially obscured some of the tank's vulnerable points.

Young had fired the bazooka before on ranges during training but this was his first chance at a real target.

Sixty yards. Fifty. Forty. Young could see the head of the Nazi officer in charge of the tank. He aimed the stovepipe type weapon and Andrews slipped the rocket into its firing position at the rear of the gun.

Young's first salvo stopped the tank.

"The patience the men displayed while they waited until the Germans were literally "on them" produced dividends," the army reported, and explained:

"The tank commander was killed . . . the crew was demoralized by the powerful detonation. A second tank, advancing to pave the way for Nazi foot troops, altered its course to the rear, and what was left of the 30 Germans withdrew in unorganized fashion."

REDS DRIVING AHEAD TO CUT OFF HUNGARY THROUGH MOUNTAINS

town of Krosno, 17 miles from Czechoslovakia, has been evacuated by the Germans, the Berlin radio announced late today.

Krosno lies in the Carpathian foothills 83 miles southeast of the great Polish city of Krakow, key to the war industries of German Silesia. Other troops across the Vistula were reported within 35 miles of Krakow last month and 75 from Silesia.

German broadcasts for several days have told of a massive new Russian offensive toward Krakow, but the Russians, as is their custom, have remained quiet during early stages of the drive.

The reported victory at Krosno cleared the Russian flank for a drive toward Beskide Pass into Czechoslovakia. At last reports, the Red Army was 20 miles from the mountain gap.

The Berlin report said the Russians captured the town four times since Friday but were driven out on three occasions. Heavy Russian artillery and mass use of tanks were reported.
